HARDY AND ANNUAL FLOWERING PLANTS

North St. Paul, Minn.

MARCH, 1935

Vol. 3,

Who is happy? Every garden enthusiast must be happy having had such a wonderful covering of snow over our gardens, protecting our plants from the harmful thawing and freezing process and giving promise of an abundance of moisture in the ground for our coming spring garden operations.

Contrasting the difficult garden season with the encouraging one approaching we think of the verse written by our poet Longfellow, "We dread the desert behind us worse than the dark before."

Every garden is a picture; and as the days get warmer and the gardening fever comes upon us we find ourselves looking at a mental picture of the beautiful garden we are going to create. As we look at the picture we unconsciously contrast different combinations and arrangements of the tall growing and low growing plants to find which will give the most artistic appearance, and what a lot of planning is necessary to get the various colors arranged harmoniously. Color arrangement is made easier by selecting a small number of choice varieties rather than a large number.

We all love to experiment a little, so why not enhance your garden by using some of the good novelties and newer varieties of plants that we are offering this season. Among the newer perennials we suggest the following: Aster Amelloides; Aquilegia, Rainbow Hybrids and Alpina; Dienier's Double Shasta Daisy; Blackmore and Langden's Prize strain of Delphinium; Dianthus (Maiden-Pink) Major Sterns; Gypsophila Pacifica; Lupinus, Elliot's Sweet Scented Hybrids; Platycodon Mariesi; Salvia Argentea; Alyssum Spinosum; the charming Campanula Pusilla; the striking Phlox Subulata Atropurpureum; Sedum Middendorffianum.

In the annual class of plants we find Sutton's Bedding Snapdragon in a rich apricot color. Calendula Chrysantha and Shaggy; Cosmos, Orange Flare; Sutton's Apricot Dimorphotheca; the new cream yellow Marigold Supreme; (Don't omit marigold Guinea Gold if you have not tried it); Sutton's dainty Lobelia Cambridge Blue; the new hybrid Nasturtiums, Golden and Scarlet Gleam; the new Zinnias of which the varieties are legion.

On this page you will find a few notes on a few varieties of flowers that have proved to be especially desirable and can be recommended.

We extend to all a cordial invitation to visit our gardens, especially during the flowering season as we are confident you will find something of interest to you. Our new planting of tulips contains some of the Triumph varieties.

PERKINS'
PLANTS

FOR YOUR 1935
GARDEN

Desirable Plants

Perennials

Under the trying field conditions of the past summer and with no artificial water Aster Amelloides made an excellent showing. It is an early blooming aster having a medium sized flower of a pleasing blue color. The blooming period lasts a long time. The plant grows about 18 inches high. The dwarf Anchusa Barrelieri gave indications of being hardier than the other varieties. Very early in the season the plants were apparently winter killed but later a new growth came out around the old crowns. This anchusa grows about 18 inches high and has small blue forget-me-not like flowers.

We were somewhat disappointed in our results from a seeding of Dienier's Double Shasta Daisy. Like all hybrids there were many plants with single or poor shaped flowers. The plants with the best flowers have been propagated and will be ready for delivery this spring. Delphinium Blue Gem is a nice dwarf bushy delphinium of the Chinese type, with dark blue flowers. It is suitable for edges or the rock garden.

The plummy bleeding heart, Dicentra Eximia, while not new does not seem to be as well known as it should be. It is a very graceful plant with a finely cut foliage and small pink flowers similar to the common bleeding heart. It blooms all summer and the foliage remains in a good condition. It appears to be perfectly hardy under our conditions. The lavender flowers of Statue Latifolia are very useful in making bouquets. The flowers are similar to baby's breath and are ready for use during July and August. They may be dried for winter bouquets. To encourage a greater use of this plant we are offering large plants at very attractive prices.

We regret that space does not permit us to more than mention the charming double baby's breath Bristol Fairy; the beautiful pink flowered, and hybrid Lupinus; Mrs. Scott Elliotts and Dobbie's Hybrid Colum- bine which are so graceful in the garden; the stately long blooming Platycodon or Chinese Balloon flower; the summer blooming Lythrum Roseum and the choice viola Jersey Gem.

For the rock garden or edge of your perennial border why not try Arabis Alpina Rosea, a pink flowered form of Arabis which must be grown from divisions if you want the true color; or the pleasing little alpine Calamintha Alpina, with its green bronze tinted foliage and dainty blue flowers. Campanula Pusilla with its charming tiny blue bells, practically ever-blooming should not be left out of your garden. For something unusual we would suggest the dwarf Jasione Perenne with its blue scabiosa like flowers, as well as Dianthus Arvensis, a neat tuft of grey green foliage, studded with small pink flowers.

The Siberian Coral Lily, Lilium Tenutolium, with its small graceful coral-colored flowers always attracts attention. It is perfectly hardy. We are offering this plant at very attractive prices.

Annuals

The two verbenas, Dorothy Thompson and Lavender Glory, are still outstanding varieties and are highly recommended. The former has a pale lavender flower, and tends to grow quite tall, while Lavender Glory (stock grown from cuttings) is a deep lavender with a clear white eye and remains dwarf. Both are profuse bloomers. Sanvitalia (Creeping Zinnia) is a very satisfactory plant for edging, easily cared for and a profuse bloomer. The daisy like flowers are about one inch in diameter, with yellow rays and brown centers. It received many favorable comments the past season.

Nicotiana, Crimson Bedder is an excellent red flowered plant and is highly recommended. We also recommend Marigolds, Lilliput and Guinea Gold; Petunia, White Cloud; Salvia, Harbinger and Zurich; Cosmos, Harbinger.

Perkins' Selected Annuals

FOR BEDDING

Unlike Perennials, the Annual Flowering Plants complete their growth the first season. An annual plant will generally produce more blossoms than a hardy one, in a single season. On this account, as well as the lower cost per plant, annual plants are especially desirable when planting a place that is rented for a short period. If there is no shrubbery around the home very attractive pictures may be made by the use of Annuals. They will also be effective in tying the house to the ground.

Annuals should also be used in the hardy border to give color at those times when there are likely to be few Perennials in blossom, and also to hide those that become unsightly as the season advances.

If possible, plant annuals in masses, at least 25 of a kind in a place.

ANNUAL PLANTS FLAT GROWN

Unless specified otherwise all our Annual Plants are grown in flats and have been once transplanted. They have a good root system and if properly handled will give satisfaction and there should be no loss. As these are sold at a much lower price, due to less labor in producing and caring for them, people should not expect to get quite as quick results as is possible with the higher priced potted plants.

When selecting flat grown plants avoid the tall lanky plants, and choose the stocky ones, as they will give much better results with less care. 100 plants to a flat.
